India pavilion: A sizzling experience in freezing Davos

AKSHARA SRIVASTAVA
New Delhi, 30 January

World leaders, corporate honchos, economists, and scholars from around the globe, who had congregated for the 56th World Economic Forum last week at the Alpine hamlet of Davos, were in for a treat at the India pavilion.

Chef Manu Chandra, who founded Single Thread Catering in March 2022, was back at the conference after three years to whip up Indian treats for those in attendance.

"We had a lot of learnings from the last time and knew that with so many global heads of state present, planning was sacrosanct. Nothing could be left to the last minute. While we made everything fresh, it was all prepped in advance," said

Chandra, who flew to Davos two days ahead of the event.

Staying at the apartments of Davos residents, which are emptied before the event starts, Chandra and team used to trek for over an hour in the snow to reach the kitchen. They were sharing it with another London-based chef and his team.

With a three-day networking extravaganza in -10 degree Celsius, the idea was to serve hot and wholesome food that could be had on-the-go.

"With no sit-down buffet type provision, form and presentation mattered as much as the taste and quality, he says. And so, the days kicked off with a dal tadka soup shot, made of amoong base with the tadka oils used as garnish.

Chandra curated a different menu for each of the three days, paying homage to three different parts of the country.

Paying homage to states south of the Vindhya, the chef paired madurvadas with a white aspara-

gus pallya, a pullimuchi with black salsify — a Spanish root vegetable, and a bajra khichdi, among others.

"It was local Indian food, with a touch of Europe but did not compromise the soul," he said.

In a nod to Bengaluru's bakery culture, there was filter coffee tiramisu, biscuits from the famous Iyengar Bakery replaced the Italian ladyfingers, filter coffee decoction was mixed into the cream, and the dessert topped with a filter coffee foam instead of cocoa powder.

When serving food from Assam, West Bengal and Bihar, mustard in the shorshe prawns were replaced with Swiss mustard and the traditional kheer kadam was reimagined as an Austrian Linzertorte, with a raspberry flavoured rasgulla wrapped in sandesh and a layer of biscuit crumb on top.

When serving food from Punjab, UP, and Delhi, there was a bowl of piping hot rajma chawal, "which reminds me of winter lunches after school in Delhi," he says.

To make sure the Indian flair to the dishes was perfect, Chandra carried with him three different types of rice from different regions for each day, nachni (ragi) from the southern states, and radhuni and kashundi from Bengal, among others.

His favourite moment was when former UK Prime Minister Rishi Sunak visited the pavilion and tried several of the creations.

"In an environment where people are always on the move, it is difficult to catch someone's attention. Luckily for us, Rishi Sunak spent some time exploring our menu," Chandra says.

Food really is soft power, he added. "And this year, the gravitas was even greater with US President Donald Trump, Ukrainian head of state Volodymyr Zelenskyy, and even Elon Musk. It was also monumental, considering the state of the world today," he says.

He adds, "Events like these also add a lot of credibility to what we do, and small wins like showing people how far India has come all make for endearing memories."

Menstrual health integral part of right to life and dignity: SC

BHAVINI MISHRA
New Delhi, 30 January

The Supreme Court on Friday held that menstrual health is an integral part of the right to life and dignity under Article 21 of the Constitution, directing a nationwide rollout of free menstrual hygiene facilities for adolescent girls in schools.

The Court ordered pan-India implementation of the Union government's Menstrual Hygiene Policy for School-going Girls for students from Classes 6 to 12, making its directions binding on all schools, both government and private, in urban and rural areas.

A Bench of Justices JB Pardiwala and R Mahadevan mandated that every school must be equipped with functional, hygienic and gender-segregated toilets with running water, soap and washing facilities at all times.

Toilet infrastructure, the Court said, must ensure privacy, accessibility and dignity, including for children with disabilities. States and Union Territories were directed to ensure the free provision of oxo-biodegradable sanitary napkins compliant with ASTM D-6954 standards.

These must be made easily accessible to girl students, preferably through vending machines within toilet premises.

ises or at clearly identified locations in schools. Schools were also instructed to establish menstrual hygiene management (MHM) corners stocked with spare uniforms, innerwear, disposable pads and other essential materials to address emergencies during menstruation.

"This pronouncement is not just for stakeholders of the legal system. It is also meant for classrooms where girls hesitate to ask for help. It is for teachers who want to help but are restrained due to a lack of resources. And it is for parents who may not realise the impact of their silence," he said.

"We wish to communicate to every girl child who may have become a victim of absenteeism because her body was perceived as a burden when the fault is not hers," he added.

The Bench examined the issue through the lens of Articles 14, 21 and 21A. Schools found in violation of RTE norms would face deregistration, while the State would be accountable for lapses in government-run institutions.

The failure to provide basic enabling conditions such as clean washrooms, menstrual products, disposal mechanisms and awareness, the Court said, converts a biological reality into structural exclusion, undermining access to education and long-term opportunity.
